Summary Description

This programme offers opportunities for structured investigation and research in choreographic practice. It provides a context to interrogate the student choreographers' current practice, engage in critical dialogue with their work from a variety of perspectives, and to review and define their individual fields of artistic interest.

The learning process supports an appreciation that choreography is a continuous process of creation. The generation of a culture of open dialogue within a secure environment promotes critical feedback and an appreciation of appraisal and appropriate commentary, as well as critical reflection on practice to allow further research areas to emerge.

Opportunities for collaborative exchanges with other artistic practice and different media are embedded to encourage a reflexive attitude through collaborative encounters with other artists and art forms.

The aims of the Programme are:

Creativity and Craft: Enhance students' knowledge of choreography as a nexus of ideas, intentions, movement concerns and production values.

Communication and Critical Thinking: Enable students to develop as innovative, independent choreographers who will take initiative in contributing to the profession

Contextualisation and Collaboration: Enable students to challenge the existing boundaries of practice and to meet the changing realities of the professional field

Assessment

Assessment is through a variety of modes which evaluate theory and practice, related to the realisation of choreographic ideas and practice as research. These prepare you for engagement with the various modes in which the processes of choreographic practice and creative collaboration are realized and in which related inter-disciplinary concerns are critically examined and disseminated.

Assessment modes include: showings of work in progress with chaired question and answer forums; Presentation with an open Q and A and supplementary document; the realisation of speculative research practice as performed event. Each test the ability of the student to develop as an independent, self-critical, investigative artist, with the ability to critically reflect, synthesise and apply knowledge and understanding across both theory and practice and cater for different modes of learning.

What do I have to do to pass?

You must achieve a pass mark of at least 50% in each module in order to pass the programme. The mark awarded will reflect the extent to which you have met the descriptors set out in the level 7 marking criteria.
